Nowadays history as science serves a few purposes. The first one is educational. Learning about life in the past, its ups and downs, we can now make sure that we don’t do the same mistakes all over again. It is especially relevant to modern politics, as many mistakes made in the past can be easily avoided in the present or future time. As they say ‘history goes in circles. Another purpose of historical science is predicting the future. This purpose has a lot in common with the previous one.
