Analyzing Primary Sources: Have each student choose one of the home front songs or assign one to each student and ask them analyze song, explaining both factual data about the song as well as evaluating the purpose of the song and whether or not they think the song would be successful in achieving its purpose. Analyzing Primary Sources- Show students copies of the Lilly Martin Spencer's painting "The War Spirit at Home: Celebrating Victory at Vicksburg" and Winslow Homer's "Our Watering Places-The Empty Sleeve at Newport." Book Review: Across Five Aprils was written 100 years after the Civil War ended. Ask the students to review the book, addressing whether or not they liked it as well as whether or not they thought it was an accurate depiction of Civil War homefront life.
