History 448:390 History of Wisconsin
Fall Semester, 1990
Instructor: Margaret R. Bogue

History 390 broadly surveys major social, political, and economic developments in Wisconsin from the era of exploration to modern times, placing those developments in the broader context of American history. Visuals illustrating the lecture materials will be used.

The course carries three undergraduate or three graduate credits. The prerequisite is sophomore standing or consent of the instructor. Students working for graduate credits are required to write a paper and honors students are required to undertake a special project. See the instructor to work out arrangements. All students are required to write a six weeks, a twelve weeks, and a final examination.

Class Time and Place: 8:50 a.m., Monday, Wednesday, Friday, Room 1641 Humanities.

Office Hours: Monday, 11:00 a.m.-12:00 noon; Wednesday, 1:00-2:00 p.m.; Thursday, 10:00-11:30 a.m. or by appointment. Office in Room 613 Lowell Hall, 610 Langdon Street. Telephone: 262-1694.

Five of a six-volume series, The History of Wisconsin, being developed by the State Historical Society of Wisconsin are now available. All five are fine, extended treatments of major segments in Wisconsin history. They contain extensive bibliographies.

For the first six weeks, abstinence or the progesterone-only method is best — this ensures that your milk supply is never affected. After that, any method can be used by the mother. 8. What if I am suffering from postpartum depression? During the postnatal examination procedure, your doctor is sure to examine whether you are suffering from postpartum depression. It is a condition that affects around thirty percent of moms after delivery, and will mostly occur due to changes in the hormone levels and fatigue in the body.
