The Encyclopedia Of Ancient Civilizations

Arthur Cotterell

The Indus Valley Civilization was an ancient civilization located in what is Pakistan and northwest India today, on the fertile flood plain... Cristian Violatti is an independent author, public speaker, and former editor of Ancient History Encyclopedia with a passion for archaeology and ancient history. Remove Ads. Advertisement. Advertise Here. Related Content. Filters: All. About the Ancient Civilizations of the World. Civilizations can be understood as the set of knowledge, expertise and customs that are common to a group of human beings during a period of time. If we add the word “ancient” to this definition, these characteristics are transferred to a moment in history. Throughout history, countless of ancient civilizations have been created, each one providing its own knowledge and customs, in order to create a civilization or society of great importance. In this article we will explore how the first civilizations were formed, which were the most important, wh List of ancient civilizations. Written By: The Editors of Encyclopaedia Britannica. See Article History. This article is a stub. You can learn more about this topic in the related articles below. This is an alphabetically ordered list of ancient civilizations. It includes types of cultures, traditions, and industries as well as more traditionally defined civilizations.
The history of ancient civilizations can be seen as old. The term civilization is understood as the culmination of knowledge and wisdom, which are common to a group of human beings in a period of time. If we add the word ancient to the definition, these characteristics are transported to a specific moment in history. In this way, many civilizations have been created, each one contributing its own knowledge and customs, in order to create a civilization or society with great historical importance. In this article, we will investigate how the first civilizations were formed, which ones were the most important, what they contributed to society, etc.